

HONORS COLLEGE

2019-2020

LEARNING COMMUNITIES

Honors Communities

Honors Learning Communities are designed for first year students who reside off campus or in non Honors on-campus housing.

Learning Community students:

- make a smoother transition from high school
- connect with Honors faculty in and out of the classroom
- deepen the connection with students, faculty, Honors and the U
- amplify their interdisciplinary experience with Honors
- grow academic and social communication skills
- belong to a small community of motivated people
- are supported by their classmates

Honors Housing offers more than just a place to live

- Applicants who apply will hear from Honors regarding their status in the weeks following March 10th. Selections made via lottery.
 - Honors Housing selectees will be notified by Housing and Residential Education (HRE) of their reservation appointment time. All others notified of their waiting pool status.
 - Your reservation appointment time is a special window where you may select any available bed on your designated LLC floor
 - Most rooms are singles (one person/room), with some doubles and 6 triples available in the MHC. Sage Point offers singles and doubles.
 - MHC apartments offer 4-8 person apartment style living. Sage Point rooms are traditional dorm/suite style.
- Secure your room by paying a $200 deposit within the reservation window – determined by and paid to Housing and Residential Education (HRE). Deposits are refundable up until May 1st, 2019.

Living Learning & Theme Communities

One way to deepen your engagement in Housing at the U is through a variety of special living options. These options can be broken down into two major categories: Living Learning Communities (LLCs) and Themed Communities (TCs). Each type of special living option is designed to bring students with similar interests, majors, goals, and experiences together. When living in an LLC or a TC, students participate in activities associated with the theme.

Living Learning Communities have a common course with other members of the community. Living Learning Community courses often help residents complete their general education requirements, make progress on their honors degree or choice of major.

Theme Communities do not have a required course.

What is a Themed Community (TC)?

Themed communities connect students with similar academic and/or personal interests in order to round out the educational experience at the University of Utah. Residents of this type of community might participate in leadership development opportunities, wilderness challenges, or community art projects with each other.

The following statement defines what it means to be a member of a Living Learning Community or Themed Community. Please read and indicate your understanding and commitment to the statement.

As an LLC or TC Member, I understand my responsibilities include:

- Participating and contributing to events planned for my community Attending designated community meetings
- Participating in any required course-work or pre-semester camps or workshops
- Respecting my fellow community members, Resident Advisors, staff, faculty members and others I meet during this experience
- Acting with integrity in everything that is done for the community
- Contributing to an environment where learning can flourish
- Meeting the expectations of HRE policies and expectations of the community partner
- Knowing that if I do not meet community expectations, I may be asked to relocate to a different community

MHC Construction Updates

Please note there is construction impacting the MHC. For further information, click here.

All students living in Honors residence spaces are members of a Living Learning Community (LLC) or themed communities, in which a small cohort of students shares living space, along with selected classes and/or activities.

The groups also participate in out-of-class co-curricular activities. * Small groups of Honors students

Honors Housing Timeline

- February 9: 2019-2020 housing application opens (university-wide)
- March 10: LLC Priority Application Date
- March 11-19: First round of Honors Housing offers sent
 - You must respond to this offer via email within the timeline specified to either accept, reject, or remain on waitlist for other Honors Housing
- March – May: Subsequent rounds of Honors Housing offers sent via email
- May 1: National Decision Date – last day for $200 reservation deposit refunds
- May – July: Final Honors Housing spots are filled
- August 15: Move-in Day

Considerations

Students who are not selected by the first lottery round will continue to be considered until we have completely filled Honors Housing. Those applicants should secure an acceptable alternative space on campus, if living at the U is a priority.

This does NOT disadvantage your waiting pool status with Honors—you'll be able to easily switch room reservations if offered an Honors Housing space. (Note: You will not be removed from the waiting pool until you have accepted an Honors Housing offer.)
